ouRoute research mode: "ON"

ouRoute has reached the first year of its implementation, and the work that has been laid on the background has been intense! Since January 2019, partners worked together to prepare the ground and the resources that enable the training of students to conduct research in their local landscapes, with the aim to unveil the secrets of their intangible cultural heritage:

"Old and new arts and crafts"...

Sicilian young storytellers growing up in ouRoute

During the Italian focus group held by students aged 14-15 years old, we focused on promoting Sicilian culture and in particular, by preserving their culture and popular dialect "il siciliano". This focus group was very important as it allowed to better analyse the cultural issues within our school, and boost the confidence and commitment of the students participating in the project! We expect great things, from our young storytellers...

A look at the Spanish focus group

The Spanish focus group attended by representatives of partner institutions, representatives of culture linked to the municipality and students from, fostered a large group in which the different views on the importance of cultural heritage were perfectly mixed. In this diversity of views emerged an interesting debate on the importance of cultural heritage and role that young people can play...
